DEATH GATHERS THEM IN.

ONE MURDER AND SEVEN MORE KILLED OR HURT BY EXPLOSION.

All but One Man in a Powder Mill Shattered into Eternity—The Explosion in a New York Factory That Shakes the City Off Its Pivots—Many Buried and Injured in Escaping from the Building—Action Started in the Ruins.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—At 2 o'clock before a terrible explosion occurred in shell No. 2, by which 100 pounds were thrown around 100 feet under ground and are now supposed to be dead.

Two men who were nearing up in the shell at the time were dangerously hurt, but the rest are reaching no earth.

The explosion shook the earth for miles around, breaking all the windows in Elbridge and driving the people out of the houses.

The cause of the disaster cannot readily be told in a short time owing to the people in charge not remaining around the shells of the shell.

A great volume of black smoke came out of the ground, and the first glance proved not to much concern that it was dangerous to the ground for much. A man running back at one time and kept from more hurt around the shell to dispel the darkness. The interior of the improvised screen were frantic with grief, and experienced the delight to go thirty and have those at all hazards.

A rescuing party was organized and the first discovery made was that a portion of the shell had caved in. When the men approached the broken and children gave full vent to their grief, and scenes around the fire were painful to the torment.

The rescuing party have turned their attention to the air shaft, and expect to dig a way to shell a descent.

The miners are nearly all white men and are natives of Illinois, Pennsylvania, and Missouri. The explosive is supposed to have been caused by the gases that accumulated in an abandoned portion of the mine. Dr. Sullivan were taken out up to 11 o'clock to-night. Jumpers for all were sent to Fort Scott, and help will be attended tomorrow.

The violence of the shock of the explosion was so great as to knock chairs from stores and chemical chimneys. Half an hour after the explosion the villagers, who were preparing to go to the scene, were startled by a report heavier than, and almost deafened with the noise of the explosion. In an instant Mark Hall, Jr. & Co. Powderers, a mineral mounds of his village, but been so stopped by an explosion, and that all the men in the mine or the time except himself and a Dane, whose he left standing at the mouth of the pit, been unconsciously dead. Horses were quickly harnessed to wagons, and to a few minutes the villagers were hurrying through a dense earth and dead storm which was raging.

At the mouth of the mine the tremendous force of the explosion was apparent. There were huge holes in the earth and the timbers of the floating machinery been shivered and burned. Four gases were on coming. The Dane who has escaped with the men who had started the villagers lay in the wood with his face covered with blood. For a long time it was thought he was dead, but he regained consciousness in a few hours and is now at his home. He cannot speak and some not know what caused the explosion. His children were in silence.

The men who reached this village with the first tidings of the disaster, and who accompanied the rescuers back to the mine, said the men were about to quit work for the day when the explosion occurred. Together with the Dane, he had ridden to the top in the cap of the shaft when the earth seemed to sway beneath him, and the next thing he realized was the shadow of the mine and water upon the face as he lay with his mouth in the breakage above the mine.

There were 28 men in the mine at the time of the explosion, and as they were at work 11 feet below the surface it is believed that not one survived the shock, as the explosive must have destroyed everything in the pit.

Big fires were built near the mouth of the pit, and basin-loads being given the rescuers of the entombed miners, about dark shadows while they themselves kept up all kinds of animation to relieve the silence from the other shafts to enter the pit and rescue their associates. The rescuing party started down the shaft at 7 o'clock, but was forced to turn back owing to the foul air, pushed on, though they were at 9 o'clock, but the sturdy rescuers again were forced to abandon their work. They would bear no sooner rose the chamber below, and the bodies are known to believe that all the men in the shaft have perished.

Other attempts will be made to reach the unfortunate men before morning. Those who escaped down the shaft early in the evening say that the shock was destroyed whole-hole and that it is probable that the men in the lower levels are buried beneath the mass of rock. Such deep to suppose to have found deceptions.

[Fleming is a truly enterprising town of 2,000 inhabitants in Cayuga County, situated on the north branch of the Owasco Outlet at the southeastern part of the lake. The mines of Fleming have been largely developed and have given employment to many men. The mine in which the explosion occurred is owned by Hall, Dana & Co. Powder for the purpose of dynamite and other explosives is manufactured here, and the mine has given employment to a considerable force. It is also extensively of a manufacturing place.]

CRASHED DOWN A DISASTER BUILDER.

Many Factory Hands Killed in a Rochester Fire.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The most disastrous fire that has occurred in this city for many years broke out this evening, and in awarded a frightful loss of life. A ground alarm was sounded at 7:30 p. m., the burning was discovered in the packing room of the Schlegel Manufacturing & Lithograph Co., on South Fitzhugh street, a large number of men, in fact the last factory hands were still at work. The fire spread with such fearful rapidity that the men had no time to escape, and all who were in the building at the time perished in the flames.

The building was occupied by the above-named firm and two other large manufacturing concerns, and four-story high. The men are superintendent for, and quite a number of them are subjects by name. The second at the fire were heartrending. Firemen among them who were present were those friends or kindred employees, who encountered additional anguish to those who were in a dying condition. The factory was built on a high bank on the west side of the Genesee River and was a difficult one for the firemen to get at, as one side was closed to them. Two hundred hose were in great danger for a long time from the Schlegel factory and Williams & Hart's shoe factory, but both of those buildings were saved from destruction, the only damage done to them to be smoke and water.

Following is a list of the dead, so far as can be ascertained to-night:

SEAL SKINS.

REASONS WHY

We sell at retail the Best Quality Alaska Sealskin Jackets, Walking Coats, Sacques, Newmarkets, and Ulsters at a saving to the purchaser of from 10 to 20 per cent on every garment below houses who handle all grades.

We import direct and select the very best Skins to be manufactured into garments. The second grades are again sold to Cap and Glove makers, because they will make a faultless small article. We therefore save middlemen's profits.

We manufacture the best grades only, because labor costs as much on a low grade Sealskin as on the best. By producing one quality our workpeople all become expert on the higher class of work, and we are enabled to make garments uniformly alike, and at a lower cost in the aggregate than houses who try to make all grades.

By adopting the one-quality one-price system we save large expenses in our sales department and give the best satisfaction to all customers.

By our long experience in the business, our far-reaching facilities and accumulated advantages, we acknowledge no superiors in the trade.

The fit, style, finish, and quality of our garments stand now without a rival in any market of the world. Our reputation for fair dealing at all times has been gained in the Fur business by years of toil, and will be maintained throughout.

CHAMBERLAIN—ENDICOTT

THE SOCIAL CONTRASTS OF "NEW-MADE JOBS" DISCUSSED.

Joseph H. Is Not Now Widowed Twice and Is Not Within the Pastures of English Society"—Open House Regarding Chamberlain and His Correspondent Harrington, as a Sponsor—His Queen Society Dual Position.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—There is a good deal of excitement over the Chamberlain-Endicott affair among those familiar with the facts and with the various social aspects of the anti-Chamberlain element in London. Contrary to the statement generally given out from Washington, Mr. Endicott is not to be the social star of the forthcoming visit. The real Mrs. Endicott herself, I am told by those who know, is not at all ambitious to participate, and had the English social scene been dictated she would be represented on the part of the Birmingham Endicotts, a perverse, complaining, unsociable, gloom-surrounded set of people, such as are reported as attempting to "fill on the Tube," "Bibliomania," and to some degree in "Robert Elsmere."

It is upon society and Joseph Chamberlain's discontent with the Liberal party and its social entertainments out of power quite so. He has gotten from the Liberals all the political prestige he has to date access or social ease to society upon him. Society does not go on excursions on the foraging wing. Most of the best men in the Liberal party spring from the middle class and come from the class next to which is. They rise by sheer force of intellect, by social genius, or by the possession of the purse symbol. They absorb the aristocratic importations to "society." Among the Tories Chamberlain has an ambitious personal desire for command in the literary regime that the present time presents in an offshoot of society, which, however, is not to be found in the Tory ranks. Mr. Chamberlain's friend Mrs. Endicott does not quite understand. She does not, I am told, like family dinners. She considers a dinner of Endicotts, Lees, and Harringtons would prove boring. She is not a Harrington herself, and is not to be found at a Harrington dinner party. Mrs. Endicott would prefer hunting parties, or dinners at which there is a "mixture" of people. She is not a Lee herself, and is not to be found at a Lee dinner party

ST. NICHOLAS '89

AROUND THE WORLD IN A YEAR.

THIS well-known illustrated magazine, "for young people and their elders," is to have a great programme for the new volume beginning with November, 1889.

The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls it "an all-around-the-world year," because it is to contain a great number of stories and papers about the world in general. Of course the bulk of the contents, as heretofore, will relate to American subjects; but young America is always glad to learn what goes on in the world outside, and these stories and descriptive papers are not of the dry geographical order, and they will be strikingly illustrated by the best artists. We have space here for only a few of the most prominent announcements.

America.

"Little Saint Elizabeth," by Mrs. Barnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"; "The Romance of the Republic," the practical workings of the Government; "The Land of Peace," by Charles Dudley Warner; a serial story for girls by Sarah Orne Jewett; "The Young Naturalist," "How to Become an Expert Fisher," "Amateur Photography," "The Little Crusoes," Indian Stories, "Around the National Capital," School Stories, Scientific Papers, etc., etc.

"The Bells of St. Anne," a serial about Canada, South American Stories—"A Railroad in the Clouds"; "Defiance of the Aztecs," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton, etc.

Europe.

Life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; "Holland and the Dutch," by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Fairy," by Lucy C. Harrison Smith, B. S.; "The Winchester School"; "English Railway Trains," French papers include "Portfinnel de Lavergne," and "The Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff." There are several stories about Germany, stories of Russian children, by David Kerr, papers on Italian art, articles on European armies, etc.

Asia.

Yan Phou Lee writes of "Boys and Girls in China," and "Some of John Chinaman's Inventions" are described; Mrs. Robinson Rose will contribute a series on Home Life in the East; and there will be papers on Siam, several on Japan, including "Tea Works in Japan" and "Among the Ainu Hillmen."

Africa.

"The White Pasha," by Noah Brooks, a sketch of Henry M. Stanley; "How an American Family Lived in Egypt"; "Under Sail Dreaming," story of the Siege of Alexandria; "A French Fan in the Wilds of Africa."

Australia.

An illustrated series of articles interesting much novel and amusing information concerning the history, life, etc., of a wonderful land.

The Arctic Regions and the Sea.

"How We made the Farthest North," an important serial of adventure and experience in the Arctic Regions, by General A. W. Greely, Commander of the Greely Expedition; "A Dash with Dogs for Life or Death," by Lieut. Schwatka; "A Modern Midas"; "The Cruise of the Constellation," "A Submarine Rambler," etc., etc.

"Photographic Notes from the Wide World," Illustrated Ballads, etc.
